Immersed in a fantastic underwater world, full of life, forms and colours, we will discover that the Earth's biggest source of oxygen is in serious danger, since the pollution of the seas and oceans risks killing their microorganisms. Will we be able to save them? We will travel through water landscapes with different creatures, transforming plastic and trying to obtain bigger and bigger bubbles.

The proposals of the dancer and choreographer from Aragon Violeta Borruei (2023 Award for Best New Performing Artist of Aragon) are distinctive for their originality and their profoundly social backdrop, seeking to encourage awareness through contemporary dance. Her creations are very aesthetic and visual, travelling through worlds in which lived experiences and imagination converge.
